Shu-Li and the Magic Pear Tree

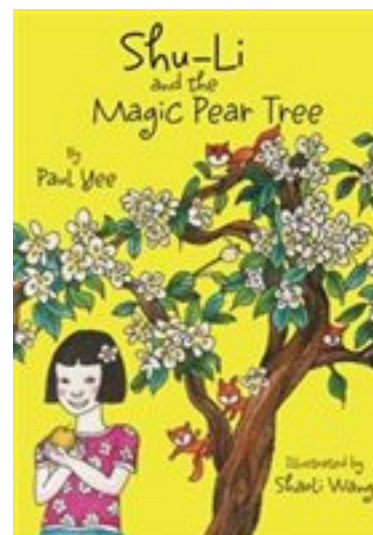

Paul Yee

Illustrated by Shaoli Wang

In this prequel to the popular Shu-Li and Tamara and Shu-Li and Diego, Paul Yee recounts adventures of Shu-Li just as she moves into her new home on Commercial Drive, Vancouver. She has trouble adjusting to her new neighbourhood, but finds surprising help from a "magic" pear tree in the back garden.

Governor General Award winning author PAUL YEE was born in Saskatchewan and raised in Chinatown in Vancouver. He moved to Toronto in 1988 where he still lives. He is one of Canada's most celebrated writers for young people as well as for adults.

Born and raised in Qing Dao, China, SHAOLI WANG has won great acclaim for her paintings and has exhibited widely. She now lives in British Columbia where she teaches art to children. She has illustrated several books written by Paul Yee for Tradewind, including the bestselling Chinese Fairy Tale Feasts.

Saving Thunder the Great

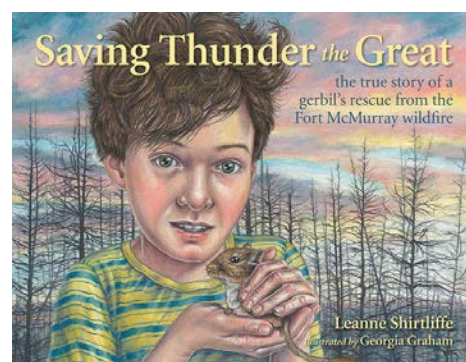

Leanne Shirliffe

Illustrated by Georgia Graham

"If you have to evacuate while I'm at work, just take Thunder the Great."

Those were Mamma's instructions the day before flames roared into Fort McMurray. On May 3, 2016, Mamma and Thunder the Great—a gerbil belonging to her son Jackson—were forced to flee their home. In a frightening rescue attempt, Mamma faces wildfire, traffic gridlock, an empty gas tank, and other challenges... all to get Thunder and herself to safety for the sake of her son.

Saving Thunder the Great is the true story of a gerbil's rescue, a mother's love for her child, and the community who helps her.

Bent Not Broken: Madeline & Justin

Lorna Schultz Nicholson

Meet Madeline and Justin. Before Madeline's bike accident left her with a traumatic brain injury, she and her twin sister were inseparable. So were her parents. But now, Madeline's parents are divorced and Becky has become rebellious, angry, and sneaky. Even worse, she doesn't seem to want Madeline around anymore. At least Madeline knows she can always rely on the miniature therapy horses she visits every week.

Justin is a senior and the president of his school's Best Buddies club. Before his sister with autism died, he used to take her to the barn to visit her beloved therapy horses. Now, with Madeline, he goes there to escape the gloom of his mother's grief at home and the pressures of his final year in high school.

Together, Justin and Madeline help each other to reconnect with the important people in their lives — and with the lives that they thought they'd lost.

Sky Watchers

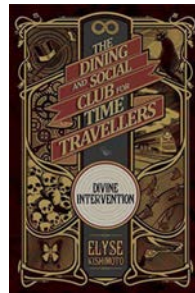

The Dining And Social Club For Time Travellers Series

Elyse Kishimoto

A mysterious island has appeared off the coast of Morocco, baffling scientists. Strange sightings, both wondrous and terrifying are cropping up worldwide. Meanwhile, the time travellers are getting along worse than ever, the very fabric of the cosmos is unravelling and the most feared armies of all time have returned to wreak havoc upon the world. To top it all off, Louisa's first week at school has been a total disaster! To solve this time travel conundrum and save the universe from imploding, Louisa and her friends will travel ten thousand years into the past, where they must find the lost city of Atlantis—and ensure its destruction.

Zhòh

The Clan of the Wolf

Bob Hayes

14,000 years ago, after a series of tragedies that decimate their people, three children find themselves alone on the Arctic tundra with no hope of survival. Kazan is a boy on the verge of becoming a hunter. Naali is a girl with special powers who can dream-travel and see the future. Barik, living in his sister's shadow, wrestles with a secret demon. In their quest to survive, they find Zhòh, a wolf pup, and their fate will hinge upon her. Together they must struggle to unite in the face of dangerous beasts, growing jealously and distrust. To live, Kazan and Naali must make a choice and confront a betrayal and the wrath of One-Eye, a brutal bushman who has enslaved Kazan's family.

Zhòh, the name for wolf in the Gwitch'in language, is the only animal that is smart enough to enter the soul of a human.

Ghosts for Breakfast

Stanley Todd Terasaki

Illustrated by Shelly Shinjo

The Troublesome Triplets—Mr. Omi, Mr. Omaye, and Mr. Ono—have just seen ghosts in Farmer Tanaka's field! The ghosts were long and thin and white, and they were dancing in the moonlight. Papa thinks the situation is great fun, but his son isn't so sure. After all, there are ghosts out there. So Papa decides to get to the bottom of the Triplets' story. He sets off to hunt the ghosts, and he takes his son with him. Set in California in the 1920s, this delightful father-son story speaks to all young children who yearn to overcome their fears. Readers also come to realize the hazards of jumping to conclusions, for things aren't always what they seem.

Hot, Hot Roti for Dada-ji

F. Zia

Illustrated by Ken Min

Aneel's grandparents have come to stay, all the way from India. Aneel loves the sweet smell of his grandmother's incense, and his grandfather, Dada-ji, tells the world's best stories. When he was a boy, adventurous, energetic Dada-ji had the power of a tiger. Hunh-jji! Yes, sir! He could shake mangoes off trees and wrangle wild cobras. And what gave him his power? Fluffy-puffy hot, hot roti, with a bit of tongue-burning mango pickle. Does Dada-ji still have the power? Aneel wants to find out—but first he has to figure out how to whip up a batch of hot, hot roti. Overflowing with family, food, and a tall stack of fun, Hot, Hot Roti for Dada-ji is sure to warm the heart and tickle the tummy. Hunh-jji! Yes, sir!

Martí's Song for Freedom / Martí y sus versos por la independencia

Emma Otheguy

Illustrated by Beatriz Vidal

As a young boy, José Martí traveled to the countryside of Cuba and fell in love with the natural beauty of the land. During this trip he also witnessed the cruelties of slavery on sugar plantations. From that moment, Martí began to fight for the abolishment of slavery and for Cuban independence from Spain through his writing. By age seventeen, he was declared an enemy of Spain and was forced to leave his beloved island. Martí traveled the world and eventually settled in New York City. But the longer he stayed away from his homeland, the sicker and weaker he became. On doctor's orders he traveled to the Catskill Mountains, where nature inspired him once again to fight for freedom.

Here is a beautiful tribute to José Martí, written in verse with excerpts from his seminal work, Versos Sencillos. He will always be remembered as a courageous fighter for freedom and peace among all men and women.

Sparkle Boy

Lesléa Newman

Illustrated by Maria Mola

Casey loves to play with his blocks, puzzles, and dump truck, but he also loves things that sparkle, shimmer, and glitter. When his older sister, Jessie, shows off her new shimmery skirt, Casey wants to wear a shimmery skirt too. When Jessie comes home from a party with glittery nails, Casey wants glittery nails too. And when Abuelita visits wearing an armful of sparkly bracelets, Casey gets one to wear, just like Jessie. The adults in Casey's life embrace his interests, but Jessie isn't so sure. Boys aren't supposed to wear sparkly, shimmery, glittery things. Then, when older boys at the library tease Casey for wearing "girl" things, Jessie realizes that Casey has the right to be himself and wear whatever he wants. Why can't both she and Casey love all things shimmery, glittery, and sparkly?

Every Month's a New Year

Marilyn Singer

Illustrated by Susan L. Roth

Around the world, people celebrate the start of the new year at midnight when December 31 becomes January 1. But not everyone celebrates on this date. In fact, during every month of the year, some group of people in some part of the world is celebrating the new year. Chinese New Year is celebrated in January or February. Nowruz, the Iranian New Year, is celebrated on March 21. Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, is celebrated in September or October. Diwali, celebrated in parts of India, falls in October or November. All these celebrations, and many others, have unique traditions and festivities that people observe.

Acclaimed poet MARILYN SINGER has created a lively collection of poems that pay tribute to several of these fascinating festivities, some well-known and some lesser-known. Together with Susan L. Roth's vibrant collage illustrations, we are taken on a whirlwind international tour of these diverse celebrations.

Take a Picture of me James Van Der Zee!

Andrea Loney

Illustrated by Keith Mallett

After being told by his boss that no one would want his or her photo taken “by a black man,” James Van Der Zee opened his own portrait studio in Harlem. He took photographs of legendary figures of the Harlem Renaissance—politicians such as Marcus Garvey, performers including Florence Mills, Bill “Bojangles” Robinson, and Mamie Smith—and ordinary folks in the neighborhood too. Winner of Lee & Low’s New Voices Award, Take a Picture of Me, James Van Der Zee! tells the story of a groundbreaking artist who chronicled an important era in Harlem and showed the beauty and pride of its people.

After Hours

Darrell Epp

In Darrell Epp's latest collection After Hours, our hero awaits Dorothee's return, while frankensteins invade Canada. Poltergeists patrol the hollowed-out manufacturing sector. The future's a let-down; contingency plans are hastily constructed. Every moment's an apocalypse as divine grace pummels Metropolis like a blizzard of fists.

DARRELL EPP's poetry has appeared in dozens of magazines around the world including Maisonneuve, Poetry Ireland, Sub-Terrain, and The Saranac Review. His previous poetry collection was entitled Imaginary Maps (2009). He lives in Hamilton, Ontario.

After the Ball is Over A Book for Old People

Evelyn Wolfe

After the Ball is Over is a continuation of Wolfe's first memoir. It's a story of the 'zoomer' generation and deals with issues of aging, the death of the author's husband, friends and family, a new romance, grandchildren, bridge, travel, and how to keep active and adventurous in your 80's.

EVELYN WOLFE's first memoir Stray Cats & Other Loves was published to critical acclaim in 2004. The Globe and Mail called it "an impressive, engaging autobiography and a welcome addition to the growing body of literature about the Toronto Jewish community." Excerpts from it were included in a TTC campaign for bus shelter adverts. Wolfe is very widely known and admired in Toronto by her community, her city and by the people who have known and worked with her.

Time Flowing Backwards

A Memoir

Graeme Jefferies

Time Flowing Backwards is the fascinating and revealing story of Graeme Jefferies - one of the most inventive and influential musicians to emerge from New Zealand's vibrant independent music scene in the 1980's. This spans over three decades of Jefferies' career spent with bands Nocturnal Projections, This Kind of Punishment and The Cakekitchen, as well as a solo artist. In a candid and in-depth style, Jefferies recounts his recording and songwriting process along with riveting tales from incident-filled tours with the likes of Pavement, Cat Power, The Mountain Goats and many more.

GRAEME JEFFERIES first emerged in 1981 with New Plymouth post-punk band Nocturnal Projections alongside his brother Peter Jefferies. Graeme and his brother went on to form This Kind of Punishment in 1983, a project that embraced DIY home-recording to produce a series of powerful and adventure records released by the seminal indie label Flying Nun.

A Matter of Geography

Jasmine D'Costa

SHORTLISTED FOR THE TUSCANY PRIZE

A Matter of Geography begins in the early 1900s in the heart of Bombay where young Peter and Anna are neighbours residing with their families. They live in the Billimoria Building, ensconced in the Catholic ghetto. When Hindus destroy a mosque in the distant Indian state of Ayodhya, riots explode in Bombay, the worst the city has witnessed. Peter and Anna, just 21 and 16 years old, are caught in the explosion while their families take on the task of sheltering a Muslim neighbour. Amidst their turmoil and tragedy, Anna's family emigrates to Canada and she is separated from Peter, just as their love blossoms. Fifteen years later, Anna returns to India to claim property she has inherited. For an instant, she believes she may have a second chance with Peter, but sectarian violence builds walls between them once again.

JASMINE D'COSTA's first book Curry is Thicker than Water, was long-listed for the Frank O'Connor Prize, and nominated for the White Pine Award. Her manuscript for what would become A Matter of Geography was short-listed for the Tuscany Prize in 2015 and her short story was short-listed for the Dastaan International Prize (2015). She is the past Writer-in-Residence of the Heliconian Club in Canada.

A bride, a groom, and a lover. Each with secrets from their past that when exposed, will change their lives forever. One will die, another will hang, and the survivor will begin an obsessive twenty-year odyssey to discover the truth. Three people caught up in the harsh class differences and religious and racial prejudices of Victorian Canada, where a vast new territory – the “Queen’s Bush” – is being opened to settlement in Ontario’s Georgian Bay country. Inspired by the true lives of Rosannah Leppard and Cook Teets, real people who lived and loved, An Act of Injustice follows disgruntled newspaperman Leonard Babington in a combination courtroom drama, murder mystery, and a meditation on the moral malaise of Victorian Canada. His obsession to find the killer plunges him into the labyrinth world of Ottawa power politics, the salons of a smug and self-satisfied “Toronto the Good,” and the licentiousness of the city’s Insane Asylum. Ray Argyle achieves literary distinction and storytelling mastery in this Canadian historical novel that brings the urgency of today’s headlines to the struggle for romance, justice and equality in a young Canada making its way to the 20th Century.

RAY ARGYLE has been a journalist, publishing executive and communications consultant. His books include five biographical fascinating personalities, including french leader Charles de Gaulle, ragtime musician Scott Joplin, and Canada’s last Father of Confederation, Joey Smallwood.

Selected and New Poems

Chad Norman

Chad Norman hopes readers find an entrance into his poems. Over the years, both the page and the performance have provided doors without locks, just handles that need to be turned, and pushed upon, finding the poem no more than a room to be entered, a room to be found both comfortable and easily exited. However, these poems have their own desires, and wishes, to go back out into the world, caught in our mind, or the memory, or where the heart stores what the past and future may wish to present to whomever chooses to stop and read what they have to offer.

Selected and New Poems compiles a series of new poems by Norman alongside a curated selection of some of his most acclaimed and well regarded works from previous work to form a book that reflects Norman's truly unique and evolving voice.

CHAD NORMAN currently lives in Truro, Nova Scotia.

François Boucher: Sociability, Mondanité and the Academy in the Age of Louis XV

Christoph Vogtherr & Leda Consentino eds.

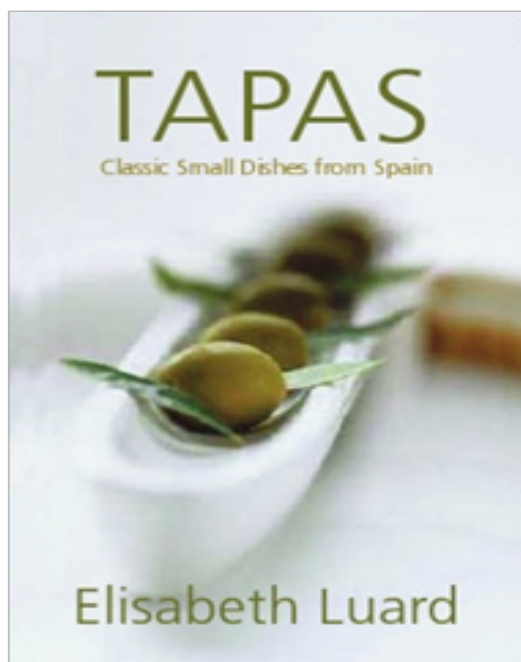

François Boucher: Sociability, Mondanité and the Academy in the Age of Louis XV assembles fourteen thought-provoking essays from leading international scholars originally presented at the conference Boucher and the Enlightenment, held at the Wallace Collection.

Taken as a whole, the essays present a wealth of new material concerning Boucher's social and professional relationships to his patrons, dealers and fellow artists, which in turn illuminate, as no subsequent publication has done, his extraordinary position at the crossroads of the fine, decorative literary and musical arts of his time. The book includes biographical information regarding Boucher's life, artistic practices and relationships, while new research is also published regarding detailed connoisseurship and dating of his work alongside new interpretations of its iconography and critical and commercial reception.

Half of this book is Boucher's original French text.

Tapas

Classic Small Dishes from Spain

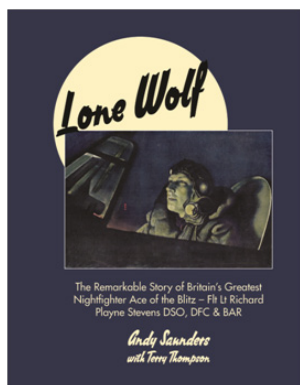

Elisabeth Luard

Tapas are the wonderfully tempting little dishes of food that are traditionally served with sherry in southern Spain. Beautifully simple, tantalizingly delicious and easy to prepare, they are perfect for all kinds of occasions.

The recipes and suggestions in this book demonstrate how simple ingredients can be quickly transformed into mini feasts designed to delight the senses. Among the recipes are salted almonds, bread with olive oil and garlic, salt cod, chicory and blue cheese, mushrooms with garlic and rosemary, broad beans with ham, tortillas, pickled sardines, lamb ribs with paprika, beef in red wine, croquettes, empanadas and many, many more.

ELISABETH LUARD is an award-winning food writer and a winner of the much coveted Glenfiddich Trophy and is one of the most highly respected cookery writers in Britain today.

The Blue Flow Below

Don Gutteridge

The Blue Flow Below is a collection of poems in which the poet revisits his childhood and reflects on being a grandfather and a writer.

"Like a bridge newly built over the wide expanse of a fast flowing river, these poems span the life of a man who still tingles with amazement at the beauty of the present, as he also sees through misty memory how viewing the past with a clear eye might yield the sacred truth of what it means to be fully human. Whether Don Gutteridge is recalling his childhood, remembering the loss of contemporary friends grown old, or he is delighting in the love he feels for his family, he is a man who continues to celebrate his own good fortune. He sees deep into the blue water flowing beneath the bridge, though he sometimes finds himself stranded on the shore. His poetry embraces scripture, celebrating both the child's Bible Christ of the hymn Jesus Loves Me, and the adult understanding of the suffering of Christ on the cross. He does not shy away from death. These are brave poems. Like small prayers they partake in the possibility of language as a numinous reminder that the best words in the best order might bring inner life to the surface where it shines."

On Threshold of Magic

Barry Brodie

On Threshold of Magic by Barry Brodie is an anthology of work situated around the author's journey creating a play about the life and legacy of Tom Thomson. The play, Threshold of Magic (also included in the book), explores Thomson's legacy and inner journey as he meets the afterlife. Through witty journals and visually rich poetry, Brodie takes the reader through the drama, humour, and tender struggles of the creative journey to honour one of Canada's greatest artists.

1967: Centennial Year

Bruce Meyer

The book 1967: Centennial Year is a collection of poetry that commemorates Canada's 150th anniversary through the eyes of a 10-year old Bruce Meyer. 1967 explores the events and experiences that both Canada and Bruce witnessed together to form what they are today. This collection features award-winning pieces such as "Sunday Drives" and "Heirloom Tomatoes," but does not take away the brilliance behind "Instamatic, December 1966" and "The Boy Without R." Nostalgic, charming and elegant, Bruce Meyer strikes home with 1967: Centennial Year.

The Ethical Careers Guide How to Find Work You Love

Paul Allen

This guide is aimed at anyone who wants to do something meaningful with their working life. As everyone's idea of a meaningful job is different, it is not prescriptive or a definitive manual. Instead, it will inform and inspire readers – helping them to identify the best step(s) toward a more satisfying work life. There are two primary audiences: jobseekers (school leavers and graduates) and career switchers. Though they may have different experiences, there are crossovers between these groups – e.g. many people already in work will feel like they are starting again when they look to switch careers.

PAUL ALLEN writes about the voluntary sector for the Guardian, has run environmental projects for the BBC, and helped charities like Macmillan Cancer Support find their tone of voice.

Slave to Fashion

Safia Minney

Slave to Fashion features interviews and microdocumentaries with the men, women and children caught in slavery, making the clothes sold on our high streets, in Europe and the developing world.

It also profiles best practice of brands and designers within the fashion industry to prove that slave-free fashion is achievable and fashion can be used to empower workers - whilst creating beautiful, competitive and accessible fashion.

SAFIA MINNEY is the founder of Fair Trade and sustainable fashion label, People Tree.

No Killing Sky

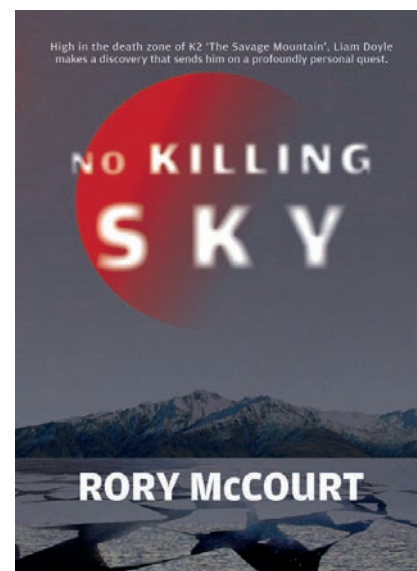

Rory McCourt

When a young Irish climber, Liam Doyle, sets out to discover who has murdered his father, high in the death zone of the 'savage mountain' K2, he is confronted by a series of inexplicable and deeply troubling events.

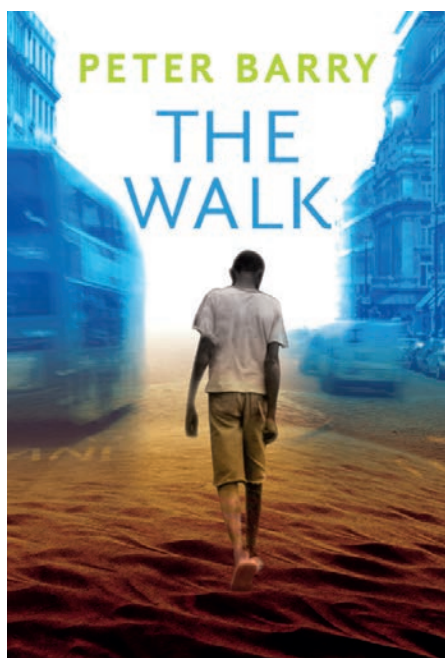

Gradually and circuitously he uncovers an international fossil fuel cartel that has set out to restore the Arctic ice sheets, by covertly releasing aerosol sulphates into the planet's stratosphere. Their intention is, once again, to discredit contemporary climate science, manipulate the markets, delay the development of renewables and ultimately make a further fortune from ongoing geo-engineering.

Ice has returned, the South Asian monsoon has failed again and Donna Stone, the new US president, has been assassinated. There is now no choice for Liam and his associates but to risk their lives trying to expose the activities of this criminal cabal to the world's media. Only then might it be possible to prevent a catastrophe that could ultimately claim the lives of more than a billion people.

RORY MCCOURT co-wrote, with Boyd Anderson, the novel Children of the Dust under the name Anderson McCourt. Apart from fiction he works extensively with several environmental groups concerned with climate change, ongoing coal mining and the health of Australia's Great Barrier Reef.

The Walk

Peter Barry

It is 1987, two years after Live Aid and PR expert Adrian Burles, working with charity Africa Assist has a Big Idea that he thinks will keep Ethiopian hunger in the headlines and touch heartstrings (and purse strings) of people in the West.

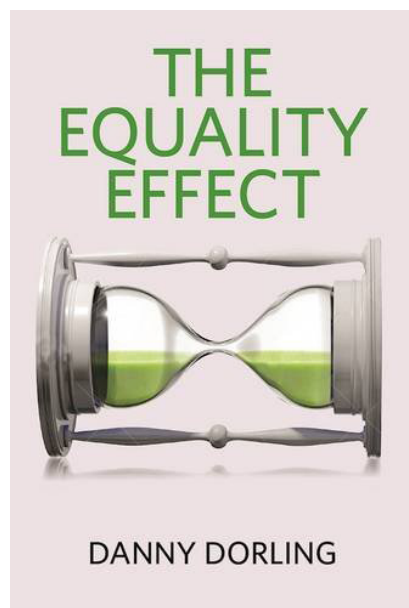

Aided by Anne Chaffey, an experienced nurse who has worked at the famine frontline for many years, he locates a young, malnourished Afar man called Mujtabaa wandering alone in the desert and flies him back to London.

The world's media is then invited to witness a skeletal Mujtabaa making a week long walk from Heathrow to a rally in Trafalgar Square. In fundraising terms, this was a great success – but the ethics of the exercise, the human impact on all concerned and the ultimate result are all profoundly to be questioned.

The Walk is a provocative and unsettling novel about the morality of charity, the media and public relations. Situated in one single week it explores how far you can go to prick the public conscience.

The Equality Effect

Danny Dorling

In more equal countries, human beings are generally happier and healthier, there is less crime, more creativity and higher educational attainment. Danny Dorling delivers all evidence that is now so overwhelming that it should be changing politics and society all over the world.

For the past four decades, many countries, including the US and the UK, have chosen the path to greater inequality on the assumption that there is no alternative. Yet even under globalization, other nations continue to take a different road. The time will come when The Equality Effect will be as readily accepted as women voting or former colonies gaining independence – and it will come very soon.

DANNY DORLING is a social geographer and the Halford Mackinder Professor of Geography at the University of Oxford.

A Class Act

An Illustrated History of the Labour Movement in Newfoundland and Labrador

Bill Gillespie

Union activists rarely make it into the history books and when they do the picture is seldom flattering. In this new edition of A Class Act journalist Bill Gillespie confronts the myth.

This is the story of how Newfoundland and Labrador union members turned the nation, the colony and the province into the most highly organized jurisdiction in North America. Gillespie's research reveals union losses and victories, their weaknesses and strengths and ultimately, their success. The narrative is illustrated with more than a hundred photographs.

Where I Wanted To Be

Tom Abray

Where I Wanted to Be depicts the challenges of living a real life, holding down a job, or trying to, in a world most of us have to contend with on a daily basis.

It's difficult to pull off a portrait of a nice guy in ordinary circumstances, going through the stress of daily living and tensions surrounding job and career opportunities, and Abray does it very well in simple, understated prose. No sensationalism or alien beings or suicidal desperation or academic angst or terrorist attacks or other assorted rampages and violations: just a life without earthshaking incident, but subtly humorous and convincing.

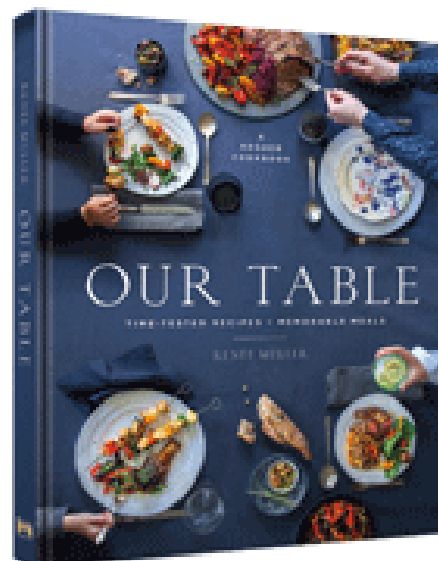

TOM ABRAY grew up near Strathroy, Ontario, and then moved to Montreal to study English at McGill University. After completing his M.A. in creative writing at Concordia University he began teaching at John Abbott College. His collection of short stories, Pollen (DC Books, 2011), was shortlisted for the Concordia University First Book Prize, as well as the Paragraphe Hugh MacLennan Prize for Fiction.

Wolves of the Yukon

Bob Hayes

Bob Hayes researched wolves in the Yukon for 20 years. Using a combination of narratives and easy-to-follow essays, his book follows the history of the Yukon wolf from the end of the Ice Age to present day. Bob also explores his original research into wolf relations to moose, caribou, mountain sheep, ravens, grizzly bears and human hunters. In the last chapter he tells us why broad-scale killing of wolves to increase game should end. Finally, Wolves of the Yukon raises profound arguments about how to value and conserve the largest remaining tract of complete wilderness on the continent.

North American Bison Their Classification and Evolution

Jerry N. McDonald

North American Bison was originally published in 1981. It was based primarily upon information contained in paleontological, zoological, and archaeological collections in some 30 museums and universities in Canada, Mexico, and the United States. The resulting skeletal and chronological patterns were then fitted into the emerging habitat patterns to allow an ecological interpretation of the adaptation of the various species of bison to different environments during their tenure of, probably, more than a million years on the North American continent.

Most Wonderful in the Smallest A Freshwater Microscopist's Year

Hernick

The book is written as a first person narrative in the form of a journal. It comprises four chapters – Spring, Summer, Autumn, Winter – and the entries within each season describe the sample-collecting forays to local freshwater environments during one year. Microscopic organisms encountered in the slides derived from the samples are discussed and illustrated. The major protist groups are all covered, as well as a few metazoans and bacteria. The purpose is to show the reader what wonderful life forms are present microscopically in freshwater environments all around us, and to demonstrate that viewing and photographing them does not require sophisticated means. Also explaining why micro-communities are important and should be conserved.

Thomas Jefferson, the Megalonyx, and the Legacy

Clayton Ray

Thomas Jefferson, an extraordinary communicator, is often considered to be among the most accomplished demonstrators of the American Enlightenment. Among the many subject areas of interest to Jefferson was natural history, and his writings in this subject area, although rare, were superlative demonstrations of the thoughts of the time and the direction in which the youthful science of natural history was moving. This book looks first and foremost at Jefferson's grasp and practice of science: it focuses in particular upon his efforts to document, describe, interpret and preserve the remains of parts of the skeleton of an extinct ground sloth from what is now West Virginia, the first extinct land mammal to be described from the continent; it reviews how his science has been viewed, overlooked, or criticized since he lived; and it expands upon the science of the ground sloth that has unfolded since he initially authored the first account of the existence of this form of life on the continent.

AMD: Age-Related Macular Degeneration

Jean Daniel Arbour, M.D., Pierre Labelle, M.D. and et Florian Sennlaub, M.D.

Preface by Alan F. Cruess, M.D.

AMD affects more than one million Canadians, yet it is still poorly understood and causes anxiety for people diagnosed with it: Will I go blind? Will I be able to lead a normal life? Can I be cured?

This new edition addresses these and many other questions to help in understanding the impact of AMD in everyday life.

In addition, the latest advances in AMD research are explained, as major therapeutic breakthroughs that have considerably improved the quality of life of people with AMD have been made in recent years and new treatments under development hold even more promise for the future.

Also available in French.

DR. ARBOUR is currently vitreoretinal surgeon at Notre-Dame Hospital, which is part of the University of Montréal Hospital Centre (CHUM). He heads the ophthalmology department of the faculty of medicine at the University of Montréal, where he is also clinical associate professor.
